About

I'm an award-winning director, cinematographer and film editor with expert technical abilities in lighting, cameras and video editing. I have over 20 years of professional experience in broadcast, cinema and online productions.

I work across a wide variety of content on documentaries, drama, corporate, sports, music, commercials and multi-screen video installations for concerts and theatre. Clients include Sony, Rapha, Remy Martin, Barbican and Tate Britain.

My work as a director and editor began in 1998 producing the critically acclaimed documentary feature 'Rollin' Through the Decades' with its world premier at the BFI in 2004. My second doc feature 'Legacy in the Dust: The Four Aces Story' premiered at the BFI in 2008. My latest documentary 'You Cant Move History' won the 'Arts & Humanities Research Council' award for 'Best Research in Documentary' at BAFTA in 2016.

As a cinematographer I began lighting music videos on 16mm film for artists like Dizzee Rascal, Estelle and Professor Green in 2002. I went on to shoot the music doc 'Marc Bolan: The Final Word' for the BBC. Moving into dramas in 2010, an adaptation of Shakespeare's 'If It Be Love' won 'Best no Budget Feature Film' at the London Independent Film Festival in 2017. Recent works include the drama 'A Visit to a Family Home' which won the Learning on Screen Award in 2018.

I am currently developing two music documentaries; one on the legendary Acid House Club 'Labyrnth' as it celebrates its 30th anniversary and a film about how the search for the lost Jazz score 'The Bastille Concerto' becomes a journey of self-discovery.
